November/December 2011

Street survey helps shape repair strategy

As the roadway in front of your house begins to age, the asphalt starts to wear down and cracks appear. That often leads residents to ask how deteriorated a residential street must become before it is a candidate for an overhaul.

The Village's street rehabilitation strategy depends on technology to objectively determine what shape a street is in, a rating system to schedule the order for making improvements and the annual Village budget to appropriate funds.

This fall, specialized trucks loaded with GPS, electronics, cameras, lasers and non-destructive testing equipment were used to evaluate the condition of Glenview's streets — surveying all 165 miles of them. This comprehensive testing of asphalt and concrete roadways is conducted every four or five years.

The quality of the pavement will be evaluated based on several factors. Surveys of surface conditions will note the amount of cracking, rut depth, roughness, texture and distress of the pavement. Deflection testing will determine soundness of the pavement base.

The data collected will be analyzed in order to rate the roadways. Those ratings, along with the results of pavement cores, underground utility condition reports, maintenance/repair history and material age will help Village staff identify and prioritize streets for reconstruction or resurfacing. The goal is to tackle the "worst first."

Staff then figures out pavement strategies and their cost estimates for each street segment. Finally, the street improvement projects are entered into the Village's five-year Capital Improvement Program. The number of street projects that can be accomplished are determined annually based on available revenues.

This fall's pavement testing will be evaluated by spring 2012 in order to set priorities for the 2013-17 Capital Improvement Program.

Based on the previous 2007 survey process, Village staff has proposed reconstructing two-thirds of a mile of roadways and resurfacing or substantially patching four miles of roadways in 2012. The 2012 budget that Village Trustees are expected to adopt Nov. 15 allocates $3.7 million for the work.

Because all prioritized streets cannot be reconstructed or resurfaced within the five-year Capital Improvement Program due to budget constraints, the Village has initiated large-scale patching programs to provide interim relief. This Minor Area Resurfacing Strategy is nicknamed MARS.

On asphalt streets, portions are ground down two inches and resurfaced. Because there's no repair to the street base, each project can typically be completed within a day.

On concrete streets, one or more pavements sections are removed and replaced. It takes several days for the concrete to cure.

A smaller-scale, in-house patch program performed by Public Works crews uses temporary or permanent materials, depending on weather conditions and scheduling.

As part of this fall's pavement evaluation, Infrastructure Management Services LLC of Rolling Meadows will also document and assess the inventory of roadway signs around the Village. That data will assist staff in complying with federal standards for sign reflectivity.

FROM THE VILLAGE PRESIDENT

As we head into another holiday season – and especially because the last few years have been difficult economically for many residents and merchants individually, and Glenview as a whole – it seems an appropriate time to ask what kind of community Glenview is.

Our residents answer that question everyday with their generosity.

Maybe you set out a few bags of clothing or other items for pickup by a charity.

Maybe you attended a fund-raising event or wrote out a check to a service organization.

Maybe you gave of your time as a volunteer, made deliveries or spent an afternoon sorting the contributions from others.

No matter the gesture, no matter how large or small, the action meant you, the single individual, became part of a group.

To live in a community is relatively easy. You reside in a specific locality, share governments and acknowledge interdependence with others.

Yet when the people in that locality also show community spirit, they share friendliness, understanding, empathy and all the good feelings that come with helping one another.

Clearly, giving and showing community spirit doesn't mean simply dipping into one's wallet.

We saw a great example of that on Sept. 11, when more than 2,000 people came together to remember the victims of the terrorist acts in New York, Washington, D.C. and Pennsylvania 10 years ago and thank the first responders who keep us safe.

To be sure, there were commitments -- both monetarily and by volunteers -- in order to organize the event, and for that we thank the Glenview Freedom Memorial Committee, Glenview State Bank and the Glenview Park District. In particular, the committee's Karen Benedetto and former Village President Larry Carlson got the ball rolling.

But the ceremony could not have been as meaningful had the community not gathered for it.

Why not continue to keep community spirit in mind during the upcoming holiday season?

Local social service agencies, schools and charities can all benefit from your time as well as your assistance.

And as you shop for gifts, remember that supporting local retailers and restaurants keeps tax dollars in Glenview. That benefits your neighbors as well as your community.

Kerry Cummings

ASK THE VILLAGE

Watch a new video answer to a frequently-asked question every week on the Village's website, www.glenview.il.us.

A century of service: Glenview's Fire Department at 100

With several large businesses to protect – and lingering memories of the Great Chicago Fire just 40 years earlier – Glenview's early pioneers decided in 1911 to invest in a fire department.

The town's population was about 650 when 25 residents signed "The Charter of the Glenview Volunteer Fire Department," which was recognized by the state on Dec. 29, 1911.

The permanent volunteer staff was led by John Dilg, owner of Dilg's Tavern, later known as the Glenview House. A Howe pumper and hose were purchased for $775, pulled to fires by the first team of horses to pass by when needed.

A bell was made in 1913 to sound the alarm, which is today displayed in front of the downtown Glenview fire station.

The Fire Department relied on local wells for water to fight fires until 1938, when Glenview signed a contract with Wilmette to receive Lake Michigan water. At about the same time, a rural fire department, later known as the Glenbrook Fire Protection District, was formed to service areas outside of Glenview with its own 500-gallon pump truck.

As Glenview grew, so did its Fire Department, with fire engines, ladder trucks, squad trucks and ambulances manned by professional firefighters assigned to 24-hour shifts. The paramedic program began in 1975.

All volunteers were replaced by full-time firefighters by both departments by the early 1970s. The two departments merged in 1994.

The Glenview Volunteer Fire Department, posing in 1944 in front of the town's fire station, included members of the pioneering Ladendorf, Dilg, Rugen and Burmeister families

Above, firefighters battle a blaze on the 1500 block of Portage Run in March 2007. Right, firefighter Patrick Kelleher helps a boy operate a hose at this year's Glenview Summer Festival.

Today Glenview's 81 firefighter/paramedics respond to more than 7,000 calls a year, almost two thirds of them to provide medical assistance.

Modern firefighting relies on the latest in technology and safety gear and emphasizes preventative regulations and other measures.

But the underlying principles, Fire Chief Wayne Globerger said, are unchanged from the department's first days: getting to the scene fast and putting out fires.

"Fire alarms are required in buildings where before they weren't. So now we're getting the calls earlier and, hopefully, before the fire gets out of control. In the old days, there weren't very many fire alarms. You got it when somebody noticed it," he said.

GVTV plans to air a documentary about the department's first 100 years beginning in late November.

Have a happy — and safe — holiday season

Holiday symbol display area available

The Village each holiday season sets up a temporary public forum area in front of Village Hall, 1225 Waukegan Road, for the display of religious and nonreligious symbols erected and paid for by private individuals and groups.

Symbols can be displayed between Nov. 15 and Jan. 7, 2012.

Individuals and groups wishing to put up a display in the public forum may complete and submit an application to the Village Manager's Office before Jan. 3, 2012. Public Forum Display applications can be found online under "Forms" or are available by calling (847) 904-4370.

Holiday glow should be warm — not ablaze

Lights and candles are part of many of this season's festivities. Keep them safe with these tips from the Glenview Fire Department and the U.S. Fire Administration:

- A live Christmas tree should be fresh; dry needles are a fire hazard. Keep the tree well watered and don't put it near a heat source.
- Check decorating lights for frayed wires, broken or cracked sockets and kinks. Don't overload outlets and make sure decorations are nonflammable.
- Never leave lit candles unattended. Don't use them as tree decorations.
- Don't leave food that's cooking unattended. Keep flammable objects, such as a dish towel, away from the stove and create a kid-free zone of at least three feet around the stove.
- Don't throw gift wrap in the fireplace.

Happy Holidays

Kind words, not gifts, appreciated

The holidays are a time for giving — and Glenview residents and businesses take this to heart. Every year, many want to thank Village employees by sending everything from cookies to gift certificates.

It's all greatly appreciated, but the Village Ethics Ordinance prohibits staff — including Fire and Police employees — from accepting any kind of gift at all.

The Village is in the business of providing permits, approving zoning changes and enforcing law and order. We need to avoid even the appearance of any conflict of interest.

Still want to thank that special employee? Drop him or her a letter or email. Better yet — send a copy to his or her supervisor. That may be the best gift of all.

Drive safe during the holidays — don't drink

People who drink and drive after holiday celebrations make the period between Thanksgiving and New Year's Day a dangerous one. Alcohol alone is a factor in at least 41 percent of all fatal crashes. That's why the Glenview Police Department will join 12 other police departments for this year's "Provide a Safe Run on Route 21" Holiday DUI Enforcement Campaign.

During the weekends of Dec. 9-10 and 16-17, saturation patrols will be conducted along Milwaukee Avenue (Route 21) from downtown Chicago to Route 41 in Gurnee.

Winter weather primer: Glenview edition

Winter is nearly upon us. Here's what you need to know to deal with the snow and cold:

Overnight street parking

On-street parking is prohibited within Glenview's corporate limits from 2 to 6 a.m. between Dec. 1 and March 31, 2012. It is easier for plows to remove ice and snow when vehicles aren't there. There are two exceptions:

- » Residents whose homes have no off-street parking may park overnight on Village streets with a permit obtained from the Police Department. But if snow is forecast, residents with such permits are encouraged to find off-street parking for their vehicles to enable plows to get through.
- » Non-residents can obtain verbal permission to park vehicles on streets overnight by calling the Police Department and providing the vehicle's license plate number, the state of registration, the address at which the vehicle will be parked and the time span for which permission is sought. Permission won't be granted, however, if snow is expected.

Sidewalk shoveling

After a heavy snow, the Village will clear all major arterial sidewalks, including those along Harlem Avenue, Wauke-

Lined up in the Public Works yard, the Village snow plows are ready for winter. Are you?

gan and Shermer roads and Patriot Boulevard. The Village, however, does not clear sidewalks along residential streets. Residents or property owners are responsible for shoveling walks along parkways.

Snow plowing

Plows usually begin clearing roadways after snow accumulates one and half or two inches. During heavy snowfalls, plows may make as many as four passes to keep roads clear. Here's a few tips to help crews:

- » Snow generally rolls off the plow's edge and into already-shoveled driveways. So push snow to the right (as you face the street) as you clear a driveway so that it will be "downstream" of plows.

- » Pushing snow from your driveway into the street is prohibited by Village ordinance.
- » To keep plows from hitting garbage cans, place them on the curb, not in the street.
- » If Village or Village-contracted plows damage public parkway or private property in front of your home, contact the Resolution Center at (847) 724-1700. Damaged grass will be repaired in the spring. The Village will repair or replace damaged mailboxes with a standard mailbox and 4-inch-by-4-inch pole. If a decorative mailbox has been damaged, the Village will reimburse residents for the equivalent of a standard mailbox installation (about $30), and it is then the resident's responsibility to purchase and install the replacement decorative mailbox and post. The Village does not replace mailboxes damaged by snow thrown by plows.

Never use your hand to clear a clog in a snow blower, even if the machine is unplugged. Instead, use a broom handle.

Who plows what?

The Village is responsible for keeping Village-owned streets clear. But many of the roadways through Glenview are maintained by the state of Illinois or Cook County. See the chart below:

First Friday recycling at Village Hall

On the first Friday of each month, the Village partners with the Solid Waste Agency of Northern Cook County (SWANCC) to serve as a drop-off point for unwanted and leftover medications, sharps (needles or lancets) and batteries. The goal is to ensure environmentally-safe disposal and guard against potential theft of old medications.

Upcoming drop-off dates are from 9 a.m. to noon Nov. 4, Dec. 2 and Jan. 6. Simply bring the items to the lobby of Village Hall, 1225 Waukegan Road.

Medication/sharps drop-off reminders:

- Keep medications in original containers. Unidentified medicines or bags of loose pills won't be accepted.
- Black out personal information for safety.
- No pharmaceutical controlled substances will be accepted.
- Sharps must be in either a sharps container or a rigid, transparent container, which can be provided.

Battery recycling reminders:

- Rechargeable batteries must have masking tape on contact points or be contained in an individual self-locking plastic bag.
- Any rechargeable, NiCd, NiMh, lithium ion, lithium polymer or household alkaline (AA, AAA, C, D, 9V) battery will be accepted.

These programs are for residentially-generated items only. The collection day will be moved to the following Friday if the first Friday of the month falls on a holiday.

For more information on acceptable items, go online to www.swancc.com.

Groot's final yard waste pick up for the season will be Friday, Dec. 2.

During November and December, there is no limit on the number of bags of leaves that seasonal yard waste subscribers can put out weekly for pickup or for residents who purchase stickers for each landscape bag.

After Dec. 2, those with seasonal subscriptions should stow their 95-gallon rental bins until landscape service resumes next April, when billing for the new yard waste pick-up season begins.

- ◆ Reviewed the property tax levy based on the Glenview Public Library Board's proposed $6.8 million budget for fiscal year 2012, which is $403,000, or 6.3 percent, higher than the 2011 budget. The $5.694 million levy would allow the library to maintain a fund balance at 43 percent of the operations budget.

The Village Board is scheduled Nov. 15 to adopt a 2012 Village budget and property tax levies for the Village and Library Board.

For more, go online to www.glenview.il.us and click on Board of Trustees/Meeting Reports.

The smell of skunk has been permeating the North Shore this fall, thanks to a Chicago area skunk population that has increased eight of the last 10 years, according to the Illinois Department of Natural Resources, which monitors the population through a road-kill index.

Animal control experts recommend homeowners "skunk-proof" their properties by blocking animals from getting underneath porches and bushes.

Glenview's animal control officer does not trap and release wildlife due to state regulations and the likelihood of skunk sprays, which can shoot up to 10 feet and temporarily impair vision. Consult a listing of private companies to remove animals from properties. For more information, contact the Resolution Center at (847) 724-1700.
